

ABSTRACT

An LED lamp has a housing and a plurality of light-emitting diodes (LEDs) arranged to form 5 two different LED arrays. The housing has a pair of openings on opposite sides. Each of the LED arrays corresponds to a different one of the openings of the housing such that at least a portion of each of the LED arrays is exposed through the corresponding opening.